SUBSCRIPTION $2.00 PER YEAR

BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1953

Observations... By UDELL

The Commission Council of the City of Bay St. Louis issued a notice to bidders this week for sealed bids to be received February 16 for furnishing all labor, material, equipment and supplies required for widening a portion of the west side of North Front street between Main and State streets. Plans and specifications covering this project are on file in the office of the City Clerk at the City Hall.

Do you know who will reign as King and Queen of the annual Carnival Ball Friday, February 13? It seems that this year, the secret is really a secret. The ball, which will start at 9:00 p. m. in the St. Joseph Memorial Hall, promises to be outstanding.

We have heard that the Harrison County Industrial Agent has gone to Washington on a business matter pertaining to the use of the former Merchant Marine Base.

The Bay-Waveland Garden Club will sponsor its annual Camellia Carnival at the Yacht Club Thursday, February 12. The show, which will be open to the public from 4:00 to 6:00 will also be held in conjunction with the regular meeting of the Club at 8:00 p. m. All camellia growers have to be in between 9:00 and 11:30 a. m. Thursday.

Two young boys, who were passing the Gex Building on Main street, noticed smoke coming from the windows Tuesday around 12:00 noon. They went to the Bobby Ann Bakery, and Mrs. Jacoby notified the fire department. Their quick thinking saved the building and prevented what could have been a disaster. The Waveland Waterworks and Mrs. Evelyn Hunt Conner have offices in the building. Most of the furniture in the offices was destroyed by the fire.

Lambert T. Boyd Jr., has accepted chairmanship of the annual Red Cross fund campaign. The drive will start March 1 and last throughout the month. Other workers and committees will be announced at a later date.

It's time for the blood bank to arrive in Bay St. Louis. Be ready to give your pint of blood February 20, when the mobile unit arrives at the Youth Center.

Mrs. Theo Tudury, Hancock County Chairman, has announced that the March of Dimes drive has been extended for another week as a result of the flu epidemic. All merchants who have not contributed to the drive and would like to do so are asked to put their donation in the iron lung in their business house.

People with dogs should keep them in their yards because they can be dangerous at times. Wednesday, while going home from school, George Lehnertner suffered a severe bite on the leg when a dog jumped at him.

Mothers' March Nets 825.25 For March Of Dimes Drive

Navy To Repossess Kebble College

According to a recent news release, Rep. William M. Colmer said Friday the Navy informed him earlier in the week it is in the process of repossessing property presently occupied by Kebble College at Henderson Point.

The property was used in World War II and during a subsequent post war period by the Maritime Commission as a United States Merchant Marine Cadet school. The tract of land involved is described as being a "valuable and attractive piece" of Mississippi Gulf Coast property.

Rep. Colmer said he urged the Navy to put the property into use or dispose of it. After the Maritime Commission discontinued the Cadet school, he successfully sponsored a bill transferring the Kebble property to the Navy at the Navy's request on the theory that the Navy planned to put it into use. At one time the Navy was considering a series of uses of the buildings and property, including establishment of a school for WAVES.

Survivors include her husband; five sons, Stanley A., August A., William, Thomas and Jerry File; a daughter, Penny File; and two sisters, Mrs. Earl Evans, Gulfport and Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. L. Cameron Dies In Picayune

Funeral services for Mrs. Theresa Agnes Cameron, 62, a native of Bay St. Louis, were held at the St. Charles Catholic church in Picayune Wednesday morning, January 28. Interment was in Bayou Coco cemetery. The Rev. John Niemeyer, officiated.

Mrs. Cameron, the daughter of the late Valrie Feyard of Bay St. Louis, died Tuesday, January 27, in Martin Sanatorium. She has resided in Picayune for the past 10 years.

Survivors include her husband, Luther Cameron; three sons, Edward and Richard Cameron, both of New Orleans; six daughters, Mrs. Carrie Monti and Mrs. Hubert Bilbo of Kilm; Mrs. Ernest Dunham of New Orleans; Mrs. A. J. Passmore of Montgomery, Ala.; and Mrs. Faye Bills and Miss Keye Cameron of Picayune; two sisters, Mrs. Dominick Costello and Mrs. Louise Smith of Bay St. Louis; and 12 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Sunday, March 1. All members are urged to attend.

Mrs. S. P. Murphy, County Director of the Mothers' March on polio today disclosed that a total of $825.25 had been contributed during the hour-long March of Dimes activity which took place from 7:00 to 8:00 p. m. Thursday, January 29.

"We are extremely gratified by this splendid showing," Mrs. Murphy said. "It once again presents outstanding evidence that the citizens of Hancock County are solidly with us in the fight against infantile paralysis."

"Since congratulations are due our most than 100 volunteer workers for their tireless efforts in helping make the Mothers' March the success it was and had to be. At the same time, words seem inadequate in thanking the countless people who contributed to this special activity on behalf of polio patients. Believe me, we are mighty proud of the generosity of our local citizens."

Funds given to the Mothers' March, as is the case of donations to all March of Dimes activities, help provided for care and treatment of local polio patients, Mrs. Murphy said. "But aside from the important phase of patient care and treatment," she continued, "contributions to the annual campaign of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis make possible an infestation of research projects aimed at conquering the disease, set up a backlog of emergency aid, and underwrite our professional education program."

Mrs. Murphy said that while the Mothers' March was eminently successful, contributions from anyone who has not given would be heartily welcomed, inasmuch as every dime and dollar given to the fight against polio would be speedily put to good use.

In a thrilling game, the Mothers of St. Joseph Academy Parents Club defeated their daughters in the Mother-Daughter basketball game Monday night. The final score was 50 to 33. The cheerleaders stole the show with their pep and enthusiasm, and when Yvette Anderson fell, the cheerleaders ran out and pinned a "purple heart" on the wounded player. When Clithilde Lang made a goal, a large star was pinned on her shirt. Toward the end of the game, the cheerleaders ran out and pinned a "Big Hero" badge on Pat Murphy, the referee. Thelma Kergosien staged a fall and supposedly hurt her leg. Laughter filled the house when the ambulance siren rang and the interns, J. Blanchard and Laurent Kergosien, carried in the stretcher, Robert Camors, dressed as Dr. Wolfe proceeded to pull out a saw and drill from his kit. When everyone gathered around the injured player on the stretcher, the doctor finally held up a mannikin's wooden leg and the crowd roared.

Mayor Warren Carver, who introduced each player earlier in the evening, announced at the end of the game that Elaine Colson won the trophy for the most valuable player on the Mothers' club team.

Local Attorney Pays Tribute To Judge Corban At Gulfport Banquet

Sidelines To Honor '52 Football Team

The St. Stanislaus Sidelines Club will honor the 1952 football team with a banquet at the school cafeteria Thursday, February 12, at 7:45. Fred Eclihy, president, announced.

Brother Ashton, Athletic director, stated that Al Pilney, assistant coach at Tulane university has been asked to attend as principal speaker for the occasion.

Immediately following the distribution of awards to the players, officers for the club to serve during 1953, will be elected. Announcements were sent to club members this week with the date and time of the annual banquet. Any member who does not receive this card are asked to contact the secretary or president.

Attended by approximately 60 persons, including members of the bar in the five counties of the district where Judge Corban has served 14 years as circuit judge, the banquet was held in the Crystal Ballroom of the hotel.

"America is the only country in the world where there is a circuit court to protect the minority," the judge stated.

The independent law profession protects the minority element, he continued, and every man's cause is entitled to be presented as the people still honor the court and its processes. "It is the co-equal responsibility of the judiciary and the lawyers to see that the rights of the people are represented," he emphasized.

"A judge that cannot work with lawyers and officers cannot attempt to succeed," the judge stated.

Owen Palmer Jr., Gulfport, Harrison County Bar Association president, was master of ceremonies. Federal Judge Sidney Mize, Gulfport, declared that Judge Corban's power to make decisions was one of the attributes of success in his career. These decisions were frank and honest, fair and openly given, he said.

"We are paying tribute to a rising sun," he added, remarking on the jurist's return to private practice. Chancellor D. M. Russell, eighth chancery district, who signed Judge Corban's diploma while associated with the Ole Miss law school, stated that a circuit judge had to know the motivation of humanity, in addition to the how and why of law.

Speaking for Hancock County, D. M. Russell Jr., Bay St. Louis, characterized the three requirements of a circuit judge, which were all met by Judge Corban. Russell gave them as, honesty, knowledge of the law, and impartiality or fairness.

Judge Leslie Grant, Biloxi, former county magistrate who has been appointed to replace Judge Corban, stated that the resignation was an ill wind to the people of the district and that he would try to retain the high ideal set by his predecessor.

Other speakers were Harold Gautier, Pascagoula, Jackson County Bar Association; W. S. Murphy, Lucedale, representing George County; Ewell Glass, of Wiggins; appearing for Stone County; Luther Maples, Gulfport, former district attorney who will succeed Judge Grant as Harrison County judge; and Bidwell Adam, Gulfport, who presented the honoree with a brief.

The production goals for 1953 point up again the necessity of also having conservation goals for the individual farm, says Fitzhugh Lee, Chairman of the Hancock County PMA Committee. If the farmers are to continue to meet the production needs of this country, more attention must be given to building and maintaining the land.

Lee urged Hancock County farmers in planning their crops to include in these plans the conservation measures essential to keeping their land productive. He explained that conservation is taking on a much broader meaning than it used to have. It is more than merely stopping gullies from getting bigger. It is also checking erosion, strengthening soil structure as a protective means of keeping erosion from starting, and it is building up the soil so that the land will be more productive.

Conservation farming is planning the whole farming operation in such a way that each year will find the farm in better condition than it was before. It means restoring organic matter to soils that have lost this life-giving material. It means controlling runoff and more efficient use of the moisture which falls on the land.

The chairman explains that under the 1953 ACP, assistance is provided to aid farmers in carrying out the most needed conservation on their farms. PMA committee members have visited the individual farms in Hancock County and have helped farmers in checking their conservation needs. The purpose of these visits is to give farmers an opportunity to use ACP carry out conservation plans which are most essential to increasing production goals now and in the future.

THE SOUTH IN THE NEW CONGRESS

During the National Presidential campaign last fall, there was much discussion, pro and con, about the South and nationwide about what would happen to the South on civil rights legislation and other matters affecting that section of our common country if the Republicans came into power. Strong statements were made in the South to the effect that the South would lose its leadership, that a compulsory FEPC would be enacted into law; that the Southern-Republican coalition, which effectively blocked civil rights and other radical proposals of the Truman Administration, would be abandoned because the Republicans would no longer need the South.

While the Congress has not enacted any legislation nor even considered any so far, the session up to this time has been devoted to organization, the indications are to the contrary. As the press has indicated, the efforts to amend the rules of the House so as to take from the Rules Committee the power to bottle up legislation of this type and to amend the rules of the Senate in order to make the filibuster impossible have failed. The radical CIO publication, "The CIO News," has given this disconsolate picture:

"Strong civil rights legislation was scuttled by the Republican 83rd Congress in its first week in Washington, a fortnight before the inauguration of President-elect Eisenhower.

"The old Dixiecrat alliance of ultra-conservative Republicans and ultra-conservative Southern Democrats worked as a team once again.

"Together they swamped a proposal to reform the rules of the Senate to end unlimited filibusters - for years the chief roadblock to congressional enactment of fair employment practices and other civil rights bills.

"In the House, Speaker Martin refused even to recognize Rep. Eberhart (D. Pa.) when he attempted to introduce a motion to curtail the powers of the Rules Committee. Instead it adopted the old rules.

"Workings of the Dixiecrat alliance were spread on the record during the past week."

The truth is that the Republican leaders realize that if their program of steering the country to the right is to succeed, they must have the assistance of the more conservative Southern Democrats. In fact, if Southern members of Congress play their cards wisely, and this they propose to do, the South will be in a more strategic position in the 83rd Congress than it was in the 82nd. The Republican majority in both Houses of the Congress is too slight to run roughshod over the South even if they so desire.

The State Health Officer Says

Accidents claimed approximately 95,000 lives in the United States during 1952. This number shows a rise in fatal accidents for each of the past two years. Last year's 95,000 lives lost through accidents represent an increase of at least 1,000 deaths over the year before. This total for 1952 is the highest for any year since 1941, when the death toll reached 95,316.

Motor vehicle accidents during last year were somewhat more numerous than those occurring the previous year. These accidents continue by far to be the leading cause of fatal injury, accounting for about 25 of all deaths from accidents.

Public accidents other than motor vehicle also took a larger number of lives. Mishaps in and about the home were responsible for more deaths than in 1951, when the number killed came to 28,000 persons.

It seems that accidental death, caused by motor vehicles or otherwise, proves from year to year to be in one sense like the weather - Everybody talks about it, but nothing much is done about it.

In this the greatest country in the world with all of its education and enlightenment, it is passing strange that an increasing number of people are killed by accidents every year from causes ranging from just pure carelessness to drunkenness.

What a sad commentary on the intelligence of citizens of these United States!

FORESTRY NEWS

By JACK STEWART,
Area Forester

Every tree now infested with the southern pine beetle can result in the death of over one thousand trees by next winter if they are left uncontrolled, according to C. B. Marlin, forest management director of the Mississippi Forestry Commission. "One beetle tree can cause, during one year, an infestation six to ten acres in size, killing 85,000 board feet of timber with a stumpage and processing value of over five thousand dollars," Marlin said.

Not only is there a possibility that a landowner will have sustained this loss by next winter, but the beetle population, says Marlin, will be 100,000 times greater. One pair of beetles can result in the progeny of 100,000, offspring during a year.

To protect themselves from these losses, landowners having timber holdings in the infested area should conduct regular checks and cut dying and recently killed pine timber. This material should be immediately sold as sawlogs or pulpwood, or control exercised by spraying or burning.

Report at the pine beetle control meeting showed that over fourteen thousand trees have been controlled by salvage and spraying during the past three weeks. The trees controlled during this period reduces the potential kill next summer by 14,336,000 trees with a volume of over 1 billion board feet. This represents a stumpage and processing value of over $700,000.

"Control is profitable at any time and is the only reasonable action to take," Marlin said. "However," he added, "the greatest profit from control may be realized between now and March 15 because we get the beetle before he is able to increase in numbers."

After March 1, only thirty-five days will be required for the beetle to complete its life cycle. "During the summer, landowners will have a much shorter time to locate infested trees and control them before the beetles emerge and start a new infestation," Marlin asserted.

Saving and Spending

Personal income in this country reached a total of $269,000,000,000 in 1952. Of this staggering amount, $248, 000,000,000 was spent for goods, food, services and taxes, and $20,000,000,000 was saved.

Though the colossal sums are beyond the reach of those of us who deal in small figures they simply mean that the average American earner in 1952 saved less than eight percent of what he made.

What men have saved in USA provides a substantial backlog against the time when this money might come in handy. It is estimated that American people have put by $500,000,000,000 in various kinds of savings—that's half a trillion dollars, if that figure means anything to anyone not having a statistical mind. By far the biggest single chunk of savings is in bank accounts.

This information is timely, for the new administration in Washington is committed to a program of federal economy. Should it keep faith with its promises and with the people who voted for a change in policy, emphasis will be put on saving rather than on spending by our public servants. It is not too much to hope that the dollar will be restored to something of its former value.

In other words, a saved dollar will cease to shrink in purchasing power and will be worth keeping.

If you are among the many in 1953 who will salt down something in a savings account as a regular habit, you should have few if any financial worries. There is no security on earth quite so satisfying as a substantial bank account and no experience so gratifying as building one's fortunes through consistent saving.

Every dollar saved at personal sacrifice adds to the Strength, Stability and Integrity of the individual. One way to build character is to build your financial security in a strong bank.

Why So Many Decide To BECOME CATHOLICS

Every week... all over the world... thousands of people are received into the Catholic Church as converts.

In some cases, they are prominent, even famous people, and newspapers and magazines will interview them to ask: "Why are you joining the Catholic Church?" Usually, however, these converts are just average people and nobody bothers to ask them "Why?"

Get the reasons which prompt the average person to become a Catholic are tremendously impressive. They are worth the most careful study of all who seek the salvation of their immortal souls, and who search for spiritual truth in a world of confusion.

It isn't easy to become a Catholic. It involves more than a mere declaration of faith, and regular attendance at a nearby church. Thorough instruction in Catholic beliefs and obligations comes first, and a firm and fervent conviction must be demonstrated. The Sacraments of Baptism, Confirmation, Penance and Holy Communion must follow. And these are only the beginnings of Catholic life and Catholic obligations.

Nobody would undertake to meet such rigid requirements out of mere curiosity, or as a passing fancy. It may be assumed, therefore, that the average person who is thinking of becoming a Catholic has been moved by some strong reasons to feel this way. Is it merely because he has friends and neighbors who are Catholic... because the Catholic Church spans the earth and dates back to the Apostles... because in the Catholic Church there is unity of creed and worship, authority and a distinctive form of ritual?

Any one of a hundred reasons may be responsible for the initial interest of a Catholic convert. But what is it that prompts so many of them to investigate Catholic beliefs and teachings, and then say to themselves: "This is it!"

The answer comes from the lips of numerous average people who were not originally Catholics but are today. They tell in a clear and understandable way what they found when they looked into the teaching, worship and history of the Catholic Church with an open mind... and into the life and teaching of Jesus Christ. They answer questions which may linger in your mind in a way which any non-Catholic can easily understand, for they too once stood on the outside and, in some cases, were even antagonistic to everything Catholic.

Free
An interesting pamphlet which you cannot obtain elsewhere... describing the experiences of average people who were originally non-Catholics but are now devoted members of the age-old, world-wide Catholic Church... explaining how and why they became Catholics... how and why the Catholic Faith can aid and enrich your own personal and family life. Temporary pastures for pigs will help doubly. They help to keep the pigs healthy and make for faster gains.

Raising suckling pigs on temporary pastures not only keeps the pigs free from parasites but seems to give them more stamina to withstand exposure to parasites on permanent pastures later.

Recent tests conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture involved two litters of Duroc-Jersey pigs, both from the same pure line of breeding and both farrowed at about the same time.

One litter farrowed on temporary pastures and kept there until weaning, then moved to permanent pasture, gained an average of a pound a day from birth until six months of age.

The other litter was farrowed on permanent pasture and kept there gained only three-fourths pound a day over the same period.

4-COLOR POSTERS AID OPS PROGRAM OF FOOD-PRICING

"Partners in the Fight Against Inflation," a new four-color poster, is being distributed to more than 80,000 grocers in Mississippi and five other southeastern states to denote their cooperation in holding prices in line, R. W. May, district director of the Office of Price Stabilization in Jackson, announced this week.

The attractive poster, which shows a grocer and a housewife discussing OPS ceiling prices, is being sent out, Mr. May said, to create added interest in the agency's "Community Pricing" program, under which grocers throughout the nation are required to post ceiling prices on about 400 "market basket" food items. Food prices are the same throughout a given area, though they vary slightly in different classes of grocery stores. The program, according to Mr. May, is a convenience to the grocer, who no longer has to calculate his own ceiling prices on posted items, and a safeguard to the consumer.

In a letter accompanying each poster sent to food store proprietors, Joseph H. Freehill, Director of Price Stabilization at Washington, told the grocers, "By displaying the poster prominently in your store, you can assure your customers that you are sharing in the job of holding prices down... Community food pricing calls for cooperation between grocer and customer... the kind of cooperation which is so vital to the welfare of our nation today. This poster graphically portrays the spirit of cooperation."

Mail distribution of the poster to grocers in Mississippi has been completed, and housewives and other grocery shoppers are urged by Mr. May to be on the lookout for it.

Tests conducted by the Agricultural Experiment Station have shown that it takes 72 pounds of nitrogen, 39 pounds of phosphorus and 48 pounds of potash to make one bale of cotton. Make sure that your land has the required plant food.

COLD WATER SHAVES... GONE FOREVER

THANKS TO NATURAL GAS

...AND AREN'T YOU GLAD!

Remember when the teakettle ran dry in the middle of a shave or, while you were washing dishes? That doesn't happen today, because you have natural gas and your automatic gas water heater to keep lots of hot water always available. And aren't you glad.

Natural gas serves you and your family in so many ways, we think you'll agree it's worth every cent it costs—and then some.

The Irony of Growing Old

By: Dr. C. M. SHIPP

What a paradox is this thing we call life. Old age is that stage of life to which we all aspire, yet, long before we reach this stage we begin to pile up a repugnance toward the thing we so desire. The thing that makes old age so objectionable is the string of discomforts that precede it.

Our body functions are impaired by the wearing out of certain minor organs; for instance, our vision becomes blurry and short sighted because the eye ball loses its long axis and becomes spheroidal, lime salts infiltrate the vitreous tissue which further weakens our vision. This is a minor thing compared to some other discomforts, because it is so easy to bypass it with the use of spectacles.

No such thing happens when the speaker of time begins to work on our taste buds. We try to compensate this by the use of ill fitting dentures, but the taste sense we enjoy so much has gone forever. Hearing defects can be corrected by electrically stepping up sound vibrations in hearing aids, not 100% perfect, but it helps some. Some of our lesser important organs get larger in old age; this becomes annoying and a nuisance at times. Other organs that we could not survive without in the first few months of life shrink and become mere vestiges of their former size; we enter second childhood. We do not need it. For sheer punishment the stomach is the Horatius at the bridge. Always treated with utter disregard it is made to take aboard a cargo that would strain the efforts of a concrete mixer. Foods as cold as ice or teeming hot are poured into its receptacle. To start this off and to stimulate the jaded appetite, alcohol is poured into burn out the delicate cells that produce the digestive enzymes. Hot condiments spilled on our food, that would rust out or even burn up a copper stomach, are added. After years of this sort of abuse it is no wonder the stomach rebels and we have to resort to small doses of soda bicarbonate for relief. At the turn of middle life our skin begins to lose its elasticity, which give rise to so many wrinkles; we lose the roll of fat just beneath the skin and with this goes the pleasing curve lines so attractive.

Our shoulders begin to droop, and, in order to maintain the plump line so we can balance ourselves with ease, our stomach sticks out in the other direction for compensation. Our joints begin to squeak, muscles lose their strength and with this the spring in our gait is lacking. The ligaments that support our vital organs in the peritoneal cavity begin to sag, the peritoneal cavity thing there begins to sink down by force of gravity and lack of support.

In middle life we have two groups of people engaged in the enterprise of either gaining or losing weight - neither meet much success - however, it keeps them busy in a harmless endeavor.

Species in all genera of life usually run true to form by following their family characteristics. If your family is fat you will inherit this tendency; if it is tall and slim you will be skinny. It takes more determination to lose weight than it takes to gain weight. The appetite is stubborn, even urging on our gastronomic desires.

Why is fat so harmful? Because it puts extra work on the heart. Every pound of fat carries with it 3 1/2 miles of capillaries or small blood tubes to keep it supplied with nourishment. Pounds of fat mean miles of tubes and extra work for the heart. The heart pumps tons of blood in a day, like everything else in life it can take just so much wear and tear. When it becomes overburdened it cannot stop, not even for a short period—no chance for a rest. When this state of affairs arrives you either adjust your daily activities to a wrecked vital organ, that is barely functioning or accept the consequences. Nature plays no favorites here, for you are using the credit of an overdrawn bank account with nature and you are headed for disaster. If you would only long and lumpy you must respect the infirmities that come with age and adjust your daily habits, with due respect, to these infirmities.

The tragedy of life appears on the scene when we attempt to assess life's true values. A man may amass a great fortune in worldly goods which gives him complete independence and prestige. This serves little purpose except to pass on to his family long and lumpy you must respect the infirmities that come with age and adjust your daily habits, with due respect, to these infirmities.

There is such a gap between Socrates, Aristotle, Leonardo da Vinci and Shakespeare, Beethoven, Franklin, Graham Bell, Wright Brothers, Edison and Marconi. What a galaxy of intellectual dreadnaughts, men whose brains touched every shore of thought in the field of art, philosophy and science, passed on leaving only a record of the achievements. Losses like this are catastrophic. The Gods may have planned this by bringing life to an abrupt end, else men might have learned the secret of life itself, or some genius might have fashioned a force so great that it would destroy all living things; who has the answer to these problems.

We have allowed memories of the delightful and pleasant things in life. It is the vicissitudes of time, the hard and unkind hours of trouble that register daily in memories' paths. Age subdues the spirit of venture, you are not willing to hazard the delights of an hour for days of pleasure. Impetuous youth in the past has brought us seriously near trouble to be saved by the council of age. We all have some anxiety and apprehension when we contemplate our exit. Pneumonia, once called the old man's disease, because in the ages, one cannot survive the infection. But, with the new biologies it can be pulled through the severest of infections made to survive to become a victim of a paralytic stroke, a physical state in which a doctor can do nothing to relieve him, or to fall heir to cancer, the nightmare and greatest of all evils that can buffet the imagination. If only we could pass out like a lamp whose wasting oil is spent. Surely, the great dream of life was not written, and the author became careless with the last chapter. These are the things that perplex the mind that has an appetite to relish and an understanding to consult.

Much has been written about the brain. Nature has been kind to man. The brain is the last organ in the human body to peter out. In the aged a man can get lost in his own home, or he may try to tell you the same story two or three times. If this is happening to you, you are slipping. There is no way to measure the function of the astute and sagacious mind, but we do know that the brain requires moments of relaxation and rest. At these periods the mind of a genius may entertain thoughts silly and shallow as "cut" own. There is no better way to find out how other people think than to compare their thoughts to our own, probably, but I hope that they are not as silly as my own.
